

Dear FCC,

I am writing on behalf of Christian radio stations across America. I would also like to comment about Klove in Farmington New Mexico. The Christian stations that I have been listening to have helped my life in personal ways. Klove has been a dedicated radio station in reaching thousands of people across the United States. They have done nothing but try to encourage the American people. The only way they seek funding is through the people that listen. That right there shows dedication in their service. Recently Klove held a fund raiser for orphan children in Africa. A man from the radio station was willing to sleep outside on top of a roof until the goal for the orphans in Africa was met. He has been doing this type of things for several years to help other less fortunate people. This radio station gives encouragement to people through songs and words of encouragement it really helps change people lives for the better. This radio station has helped me to stay positive and to focus on things that are constructive.

Klove has been able to stay on the air and pay their bills. They have the required amount of people to run a station. This station has been established for several years and should not be kicked off because they have worked hard and in an honest and ethical way to expand their radio station across the untied States. They have always followed the rules and done what they have needed to do to stay on the air. As stated earlier this is a listener supported radio station and has a tight budget. This station could not afford additional staffing.

Christian stations are needed in today's society. All the violence, stealing, murder, drugs and other violent acts are immersing themselves in this country. Klove and other stations like these are helping the people involved in these types of crimes and helping them to turn into better citizens. USA is a country of free speech and our Fore Fathers fought to make a country that is upright and makes a way for people to hear and express what is coming from their hearts and that is what Klove is doing touching people's hearts every single day. So I am pleading and asking you as a commission to keep Christian radio stations on the air the way they are to help people across this nation and others around the world. I thank you for your time and consideration in this important and urgent matter.

Sincerely,

Chris Brent
